Exploring a rule that burdens me

1 | Purpose, fit and boundaries

Purpose of this unit

Choose one everyday expectation and explore its purpose, costs and possible flexibility. Lowering standards is not required; distinguish necessary requirements from rules that burden without helping.

Choice and adaptation

Choose this sheet following professional assessment and with consent. The person may skip questions, answer aloud, or choose another tool. This is proposed original material for review; it provides no score, diagnosis, or promise of an outcome.

Boundaries specific to this unit

Do not change safety rules, medical treatment, legal duties or binding professional requirements. Do not practice deliberate mistakes or reduced checking in a dangerous task. Compulsive patterns require separate assessment; this is not an OCD exercise.

Reusing existing material

CORE-04 explores interpretations and CORE-07 plans an experiment. This unit examines a performance rule and distinguishes actual requirements from personal additions, without duplicating a thought diary or exposure exercise.

> Draft for administrator review. Clinical review and final rights approval are still pending.

Working together with the worksheet

2 | A conversation about one situation

Opening

Choose a situation the person wants to explore. It need not be the hardest situation. Check that the question is understood and the wording fits the person; their account comes before the therapist's interpretation.

1 | Question for discussion

What everyday task did we choose to explore?

2 | Question for discussion

What standard or condition did I set for myself?

3 | Question for discussion

What is genuinely required, and what is an extra personal rule?

4 | Question for discussion

What are the rule's benefits and costs?

5 | Question for discussion

What alternative can we explore without compromising a necessary requirement?

Closing

Summarize what became clearer and what remains open. Use the existing SES-S01 and SES-S02 for the session framework. There is no need to repeat an assessment or plan already recorded.

Adapting for four age groups

3 | Age is a starting point, not an assumption about ability

CH | Children, approximately ages 6 to 11

Choose a task that does not test the child's worth. Clarify what is actually required, and do not ask the child to break an adult's rule.

Offer one question at a time with little writing. Adult support must not replace the child's own voice.

TE | Adolescents, approximately ages 12 to 17

Distinguish personal pressure from actual educational or institutional requirements; change is chosen together, not imposed.

Agree in advance what will be shared and with whom, and explain the privacy limits in this setting. Do not promise absolute confidentiality.

AD | Adults

Check risk and professional responsibilities before any attempt; binding safety and quality duties remain in force.

OA | Older adults

Choose a familiar, comfortable habit. Do not assume that a preference for order is a problem needing change.

Offer reading support, time, and conversation according to preference. Choose help from another person together with the participant, respecting their privacy.

Practice, review and next steps

4 | Shared choice and learning from the attempt

Before offering practice sheet P

Decide together whether practice between sessions is appropriate at all. Define one opportunity, boundaries, and desired support. Practice may take place only in the session. There is no required daily sequence or requirement to share the sheet with others.

At the next session

An unpleasant outcome is not failure or proof that the rule must become stricter. Explore what was learned, what is unknown and whether the task suited the person. Keeping a requirement or choosing another tool is an option.

Professional and technical records

Each version has a separate review record covering age suitability, originality, rights, and fictional filling. Reviewer and date fields remain blank until assigned. File checks or a code merge are not clinical approval. Clinical information stays only in the authorized setting, outside the code repository.

The following links were used for background only. Questions and adaptations were written afresh for the expansion plan; no questionnaire, scale, or protocol was copied. Adult sources do not validate the child versions. This material makes no claim about session count or treatment effectiveness.
