A planned attempt at flexibility

1 | Purpose, fit and boundaries

Purpose of this unit

Plan a small attempt at flexibility in a personal demand with the therapist, in a situation without real risk. Define what is being explored, what remains required and what can be learned even if the result is unpleasant or unexpected.

Choice and adaptation

Choose this sheet following professional assessment and with consent. The person may skip questions, answer aloud, or choose another tool. This is proposed original material for review; it provides no score, diagnosis, or promise of an outcome.

Boundaries specific to this unit

Do not attempt anything involving risk, illegality, medication changes, harm to others or breaking a binding requirement. Do not prescribe OCD exposure or response prevention through this sheet. Fictional rehearsal in the session may be enough.

Reusing existing material

Core-07 provides a behavioral experiment framework. Use it if already available; here specify flexibility in a standard and distinguish prediction from outcome. PERF-02 and PERF-03 help choose the demand and concern.

A fictional example for discussion

Fictional example: Tamar is preparing a private greeting. She explores whether choosing one font instead of changing it repeatedly helps her finish while keeping what she wanted to say.

> Draft for administrator review. Clinical review and final rights approval are still pending.

Working together with the worksheet

2 | A conversation about one situation

Opening

Choose a situation the person wants to explore. It need not be the hardest situation. Check that the question is understood and the wording fits the person; their account comes before the therapist's interpretation.

1 | Question for discussion

What personal demand will I explore in a defined attempt?

2 | Question for discussion

What exactly will I change, and what will I keep the same?

3 | Question for discussion

What boundaries rule out risk or breaking a duty?

4 | Question for discussion

What is the prediction, and what information can I gather?

5 | Question for discussion

What conditions would lead me to stop or change the attempt?

Closing

Summarize what became clearer and what remains open. Use the existing SES-S01 and SES-S02 for the session framework. There is no need to repeat an assessment or plan already recorded.

Possible difficulties

If the attempt becomes another test of success, reduce its scope or return to discussion. An unpleasant result does not prove all flexibility is dangerous; explore the context.

Adapting for four age groups

3 | Age is a starting point, not an assumption about ability

CH | Children, approximately ages 6 to 11

One possible attempt is choosing a drawing color without repeatedly changing it. The adult, not the child, is responsible for safety and a supportive environment.

Offer one question at a time with little writing. Adult support must not replace the child's own voice.

TE | Adolescents, approximately ages 12 to 17

Do not choose an attempt involving publication, social exposure or abandoning an educational requirement. Practice first in a setting chosen together.

Agree in advance what will be shared and with whom, and explain the privacy limits in this setting. Do not promise absolute confidentiality.

AD | Adults

Check confidentiality, professional responsibility and financial consequences. Testing a personal demand does not authorize changing a workplace procedure.

OA | Older adults

Choose a familiar, accessible activity according to the person's wishes. Do not use a new difficulty as a basis for an experiment before assessing it.

Offer reading support, time, and conversation according to preference. Choose help from another person together with the participant, respecting their privacy.

> Each age version needs its own review. Approval of one version does not automatically approve the others.

Practice, review and next steps

4 | Shared choice and learning from the attempt

Before offering practice sheet P

Choose one specific opportunity together, only if it suits the person. Clarify binding requirements and what cannot change. The idea can be explored through conversation alone. Do not set a quota for mistakes, compromise safety or require proof of personal worth.

At the next session

Review the prediction, facts and boundaries. Do not automatically expand the attempt; choosing not to repeat it or stopping with what was learned are valid options.

Professional and technical records

Each version has a separate review record covering age suitability, originality, rights, and fictional filling. Reviewer and date fields remain blank until assigned. File checks or a code merge are not clinical approval. Clinical information stays only in the authorized setting, outside the code repository.

Background references

The following links were used for background only. Questions and adaptations were written afresh for the expansion plan; no questionnaire, scale, or protocol was copied. Adult sources do not validate the child versions. This material makes no claim about session count or treatment effectiveness.
