Procrastination, repeated checking and task completion

1 | Purpose, fit and boundaries

Purpose of this unit

Distinguish difficulty starting, necessary checking and repetition that adds no information, and choose a flexible rule for starting and finishing a suitable task. Explore conditions and resources before attributing difficulty to a personal demand.

Choice and adaptation

Choose this sheet following professional assessment and with consent. The person may skip questions, answer aloud, or choose another tool. This is proposed original material for review; it provides no score, diagnosis, or promise of an outcome.

Boundaries specific to this unit

Do not stop safety, treatment or work checks required by instructions. Possible compulsive checking needs separate assessment; this sheet is not a response-prevention plan. Do not set a universal time or checking quota.

Reusing existing material

EXEC-01 covers starting a task. Here we explore links between quality concerns, delay and finishing; PERF-02 helps define a sufficient result without ignoring practical adaptation needs.

A fictional example for discussion

Fictional example: Roni postpones a supplies list for a leisure activity. She starts with three known items, marks one question to clarify and decides when the list is sufficient for this purpose.

> Draft for administrator review. Clinical review and final rights approval are still pending.

Working together with the worksheet

2 | A conversation about one situation

Opening

Choose a situation the person wants to explore. It need not be the hardest situation. Check that the question is understood and the wording fits the person; their account comes before the therapist's interpretation.

1 | Question for discussion

In what task do I struggle to start or finish?

2 | Question for discussion

What delays me besides concern about the result's quality?

3 | Question for discussion

What defined start is possible under these conditions?

4 | Question for discussion

What checks are required, and which repeat without new information?

5 | Question for discussion

What flexible stopping rule fits the requirements and goal?

Closing

Summarize what became clearer and what remains open. Use the existing SES-S01 and SES-S02 for the session framework. There is no need to repeat an assessment or plan already recorded.

Possible difficulties

If checking urges relate to compulsive fears, do not use this sheet to instruct stopping them. If conflicting requirements prevent completion, clarify them before setting a rule.

Adapting for four age groups

3 | Age is a starting point, not an assumption about ability

CH | Children, approximately ages 6 to 11

Divide a task into an understandable, finishable part. Do not interpret lack of knowledge or needing help as laziness; the adult clarifies the completion requirement.

Offer one question at a time with little writing. Adult support must not replace the child's own voice.

TE | Adolescents, approximately ages 12 to 17

Check workload, learning difficulties and existing accommodations. Do not cancel necessary submission checks or make breaks conditional on obedience.

Agree in advance what will be shared and with whom, and explain the privacy limits in this setting. Do not promise absolute confidentiality.

AD | Adults

Preserve professional quality control. Explore a habit through a simple personal task unrelated to safety or livelihood.

OA | Older adults

Respect the person's pace and chosen aids. New confusion, fatigue or sensory difficulties need assessment, not an automatic explanation of perfectionism.

Offer reading support, time, and conversation according to preference. Choose help from another person together with the participant, respecting their privacy.

> Each age version needs its own review. Approval of one version does not automatically approve the others.

Practice, review and next steps

4 | Shared choice and learning from the attempt

Before offering practice sheet P

Choose one specific opportunity together, only if it suits the person. Clarify binding requirements and what cannot change. The idea can be explored through conversation alone. Do not set a quota for mistakes, compromise safety or require proof of personal worth.

At the next session

Check whether the rule helped with the specific goal. Do not make faster starting or fewer checks a measure of worth; change conditions or arrange adaptations instead of applying pressure.

Professional and technical records

Each version has a separate review record covering age suitability, originality, rights, and fictional filling. Reviewer and date fields remain blank until assigned. File checks or a code merge are not clinical approval. Clinical information stays only in the authorized setting, outside the code repository.

The following links were used for background only. Questions and adaptations were written afresh for the expansion plan; no questionnaire, scale, or protocol was copied. Adult sources do not validate the child versions. This material makes no claim about session count or treatment effectiveness.
