Learning and maintenance

1 | Purpose, fit and boundaries

Purpose of this unit

Summarize helpful flexible choices, identify returning burdensome demands under pressure, and plan a moderate response and support. Preserve personal aspirations alongside rest, boundaries and the option to make corrections.

Choice and adaptation

Choose this sheet following professional assessment and with consent. The person may skip questions, answer aloud, or choose another tool. This is proposed original material for review; it provides no score, diagnosis, or promise of an outcome.

Boundaries specific to this unit

Do not write a promise to make no mistakes or never return to an old habit. The plan does not replace help for significant distress, assessment of living conditions or appropriate treatment. Increased effort is not always a setback.

Reusing existing material

Gather examples from PERF-02 to PERF-05 and existing maps. Shared closing and follow-up sheets can provide a framework; keep this plan focused on burdensome demands without duplicating the treatment summary.

A fictional example for discussion

Fictional example: Uri notices that before an event he returns to editing lists for hours. He chooses to check once what is essential and ask for help sharing the tasks.

> Draft for administrator review. Clinical review and final rights approval are still pending.

Working together with the worksheet

2 | A conversation about one situation

Opening

Choose a situation the person wants to explore. It need not be the hardest situation. Check that the question is understood and the wording fits the person; their account comes before the therapist's interpretation.

1 | Question for discussion

What learning from the attempts would I like to keep?

2 | Question for discussion

What conditions tend to bring back burdensome demands?

3 | Question for discussion

What would signal that I should pause and explore the cost?

4 | Question for discussion

What moderate response and support can I choose?

5 | Question for discussion

When will I review the plan, and how will I know further help is needed?

Closing

Summarize what became clearer and what remains open. Use the existing SES-S01 and SES-S02 for the session framework. There is no need to repeat an assessment or plan already recorded.

Possible difficulties

If the maintenance plan becomes a list of obligations, shorten it. If difficulty grows despite adaptations, reassess needs and support instead of automatically adding practice.

Adapting for four age groups

3 | Age is a starting point, not an assumption about ability

CH | Children, approximately ages 6 to 11

Write a brief plan in the child's words with a clear adult role. Do not require continuous self-monitoring or reporting every mistake.

Offer one question at a time with little writing. Adult support must not replace the child's own voice.

TE | Adolescents, approximately ages 12 to 17

Adapt to exam periods and social changes. The adolescent chooses what to share, with clear privacy limits and support arrangements.

Agree in advance what will be shared and with whom, and explain the privacy limits in this setting. Do not promise absolute confidentiality.

AD | Adults

Consider workload, caring for others and limited resources. Sometimes the appropriate response is changing a demand rather than improving self-management.

OA | Older adults

Update according to current routine and preferences. Do not assume a companion is needed; brief notes or a spoken summary are options.

Offer reading support, time, and conversation according to preference. Choose help from another person together with the participant, respecting their privacy.

> Each age version needs its own review. Approval of one version does not automatically approve the others.

Practice, review and next steps

4 | Shared choice and learning from the attempt

Before offering practice sheet P

Choose one specific opportunity together, only if it suits the person. Clarify binding requirements and what cannot change. The idea can be explored through conversation alone. Do not set a quota for mistakes, compromise safety or require proof of personal worth.

At the next session

Recognize choosing rest, clarification or help. Explore flexibility in different contexts and agree a review time that does not require continuous monitoring.

Professional and technical records

Each version has a separate review record covering age suitability, originality, rights, and fictional filling. Reviewer and date fields remain blank until assigned. File checks or a code merge are not clinical approval. Clinical information stays only in the authorized setting, outside the code repository.

Background references

The following links were used for background only. Questions and adaptations were written afresh for the expansion plan; no questionnaire, scale, or protocol was copied. Adult sources do not validate the child versions. This material makes no claim about session count or treatment effectiveness.
