Applying learning and maintaining it

1 | Purpose, fit and boundaries

Purpose of this unit

Gather helpful responses from earlier units, identify recurring pressures and build a flexible plan for choice and support. Distinguish everyday learning from situations needing assessment or a different response.

Choice and adaptation

Choose this sheet following professional assessment and with consent. The person may skip questions, answer aloud, or choose another tool. This is proposed original material for review; it provides no score, diagnosis, or promise of an outcome.

Boundaries specific to this unit

This is not an emergency plan or a promise to avoid strong emotion. Harm, threats, dangerously losing control or significant changes require a separate appropriate professional response; do not rely on completing a form.

Reusing existing material

Draw on REG-01 to REG-05 and existing session summaries. Choose tools by context, support people and a review time without duplicating compulsory daily emotional monitoring.

A fictional example for discussion

Fictional example: Amir notices that listening is difficult after a packed day. He chooses to request a little time to get organized, arrange a conversation and seek help when ongoing overload does not change.

> Draft for administrator review. Clinical review and final rights approval are still pending.

Working together with the worksheet

2 | A conversation about one situation

Opening

Choose a situation the person wants to explore. It need not be the hardest situation. Check that the question is understood and the wording fits the person; their account comes before the therapist's interpretation.

1 | Question for discussion

What recurring contexts narrow my response options?

2 | Question for discussion

What signs invite a pause and review?

3 | Question for discussion

What response fits each context, not only the emotion?

4 | Question for discussion

What support is available, and what is missing to access it?

5 | Question for discussion

When will we review the plan, and when will I seek further assessment?

Closing

Summarize what became clearer and what remains open. Use the existing SES-S01 and SES-S02 for the session framework. There is no need to repeat an assessment or plan already recorded.

Possible difficulties

If the plan is long or burdensome, choose one tool and one person to help. When conditions are unsafe, do not add practice; explore an appropriate response.

Adapting for four age groups

3 | Age is a starting point, not an assumption about ability

CH | Children, approximately ages 6 to 11

The plan includes what adults will do to help, not only tasks for the child. A short card can include a drawing and safe adults' names chosen with the child.

Offer one question at a time with little writing. Adult support must not replace the child's own voice.

TE | Adolescents, approximately ages 12 to 17

Distinguish agreed support from forced monitoring. Consider home, education and online conditions, and explain privacy limits when protection is needed.

Agree in advance what will be shared and with whom, and explain the privacy limits in this setting. Do not promise absolute confidentiality.

AD | Adults

Check actual access to support and changes in workload conditions. Lack of time or resources is not a lack of motivation to use tools.

OA | Older adults

Update around changes in routine and preferences without assuming dependence. Choosing a companion and type of help stays with the person according to their ability and wishes.

Offer reading support, time, and conversation according to preference. Choose help from another person together with the participant, respecting their privacy.

> Each age version needs its own review. Approval of one version does not automatically approve the others.

Practice, review and next steps

4 | Shared choice and learning from the attempt

Before offering practice sheet P

Choose a safe, suitable opportunity with the person, or use only a fictional conversation in the session. Do not provoke anger or create conflict to complete the sheet. Skipping, stopping and seeking help are options. Harm and threats need an appropriate response before communication practice.

At the next session

Explore what remains useful across situations and what needs adaptation. Do not interpret returning anger as failure; assess choice, boundaries, support and environmental conditions over time.

Professional and technical records

Each version has a separate review record covering age suitability, originality, rights, and fictional filling. Reviewer and date fields remain blank until assigned. File checks or a code merge are not clinical approval. Clinical information stays only in the authorized setting, outside the code repository.
