Responding to internal and external criticism

1 | Purpose, fit and boundaries

Purpose of this unit

Distinguish information that can support learning from harm or generalization, and choose a response respectful of self and others. This may be a boundary, clarification request, corrective action or choosing not to respond.

Choice and adaptation

Choose this sheet following professional assessment and with consent. The person may skip questions, answer aloud, or choose another tool. This is proposed original material for review; it provides no score, diagnosis, or promise of an outcome.

Boundaries specific to this unit

Do not require listening to harmful criticism, apologizing or talking with an unsafe person. Consider power differences and actual danger. This sheet does not require confrontation or make every piece of feedback an accurate description of the person.

Reusing existing material

SOC-01 helps phrase a request or boundary. Here we examine how criticism affects self-treatment before choosing suitable communication; do not duplicate a general conversation script.

> Draft for administrator review. Clinical review and final rights approval are still pending.

Working together with the worksheet

2 | A conversation about one situation

Opening

Choose a situation the person wants to explore. It need not be the hardest situation. Check that the question is understood and the wording fits the person; their account comes before the therapist's interpretation.

1 | Question for discussion

What feedback or critical sentence calls for a choice from me?

2 | Question for discussion

What relates to a specific action, and what becomes a sweeping label?

3 | Question for discussion

What response to myself would combine respect with realistic responsibility?

4 | Question for discussion

What response to the other person is possible given the context and power differences?

5 | Question for discussion

When is it appropriate to seek help or not have the conversation?

Closing

Summarize what became clearer and what remains open. Use the existing SES-S01 and SES-S02 for the session framework. There is no need to repeat an assessment or plan already recorded.

Adapting for four age groups

3 | Age is a starting point, not an assumption about ability

CH | Children, approximately ages 6 to 11

Insults, intimidation or harm may call for help from an appropriate adult; the child is not responsible for correcting the harmful person's behavior.

Offer one question at a time with little writing. Adult support must not replace the child's own voice.

TE | Adolescents, approximately ages 12 to 17

Explore privacy, the educational setting and online relationships. Avoiding confrontation may be an appropriate choice in some situations.

Agree in advance what will be shared and with whom, and explain the privacy limits in this setting. Do not promise absolute confidentiality.

AD | Adults

Distinguish constructive feedback from humiliation or coercion. Safety and workplace considerations come before phrasing practice.

OA | Older adults

Consider feedback in family, service or support settings without assuming a companion knows better than the person.

Offer reading support, time, and conversation according to preference. Choose help from another person together with the participant, respecting their privacy.

Practice, review and next steps

4 | Shared choice and learning from the attempt

Before offering practice sheet P

Decide together whether practice between sessions is appropriate at all. Define one opportunity, boundaries, and desired support. Practice may take place only in the session. There is no required daily sequence or requirement to share the sheet with others.

At the next session

Check whether the response increased respect and choice. Another person's agreement, apology or approval is not needed for the step to have value.

Professional and technical records

Each version has a separate review record covering age suitability, originality, rights, and fictional filling. Reviewer and date fields remain blank until assigned. File checks or a code merge are not clinical approval. Clinical information stays only in the authorized setting, outside the code repository.
