MOOD-05 | Therapist only - all age groups

Connection, enjoyment and a sense of capability

1 | Purpose, fit and boundaries

Purpose of this unit

Explore what is missing among wanted connection, personal interest and a sense of doing, and choose a small combination that fits the person's life. Not every activity needs to bring enjoyment or achievement.

Choice and adaptation

Choose this sheet following professional assessment and with consent. The person may skip questions, answer aloud, or choose another tool. This is proposed original material for review; it provides no score, diagnosis, or promise of an outcome.

Boundaries specific to this unit

Do not require social contact, set a quota for enjoyment or measure a person's worth by productivity. Unsafe relationships are not practice goals. Unchanged mood is not failure or a reason to add more demands.

Reusing existing material

MOOD-03 focused on adapting one step. Here we explore balancing different needs in real life. Do not duplicate a full activity diary or an existing goals plan.

> Draft for administrator review. Clinical review and final rights approval are still pending.

Working together with the worksheet

2 | A conversation about one situation

Opening

Choose a situation the person wants to explore. It need not be the hardest situation. Check that the question is understood and the wording fits the person; their account comes before the therapist's interpretation.

1 | Question for discussion

What important need has been pushed aside recently?

2 | Question for discussion

What options offer connection, interest or a sense of capability?

3 | Question for discussion

What small combination fits my resources and workload?

4 | Question for discussion

What boundaries and support are needed to make the choice possible?

5 | Question for discussion

What would I like to learn beyond enjoyment or achievement?

Closing

Summarize what became clearer and what remains open. Use the existing SES-S01 and SES-S02 for the session framework. There is no need to repeat an assessment or plan already recorded.

Adapting for four age groups

3 | Age is a starting point, not an assumption about ability

CH | Children, approximately ages 6 to 11

Make room for play, curiosity and chosen connection. Do not turn contact with another child into a success task or competition.

Offer one question at a time with little writing. Adult support must not replace the child's own voice.

TE | Adolescents, approximately ages 12 to 17

Explore belonging, privacy and peer pressure. Time alone can be a helpful choice rather than a sign of withdrawal.

Agree in advance what will be shared and with whom, and explain the privacy limits in this setting. Do not promise absolute confidentiality.

AD | Adults

Consider cost, time and caring for others; a brief contact or meaningful activity at home may be chosen.

OA | Older adults

Allow a familiar interest to take a different form. Do not assume the goal is to return to a past level of activity.

Offer reading support, time, and conversation according to preference. Choose help from another person together with the participant, respecting their privacy.

> Each age version needs its own review. Approval of one version does not automatically approve the others.

Practice, review and next steps

4 | Shared choice and learning from the attempt

Before offering practice sheet P

Decide together whether practice between sessions is appropriate at all. Define one opportunity, boundaries, and desired support. Practice may take place only in the session. There is no required daily sequence or requirement to share the sheet with others.

At the next session

Explore which need was met and the cost of the effort involved. Preserve personal choice; not every kind of activity needs to be included every day.

Professional and technical records

Each version has a separate review record covering age suitability, originality, rights, and fictional filling. Reviewer and date fields remain blank until assigned. File checks or a code merge are not clinical approval. Clinical information stays only in the authorized setting, outside the code repository.

Background references

The following links were used for background only. Questions and adaptations were written afresh for the expansion plan; no questionnaire, scale, or protocol was copied. Adult sources do not validate the child versions. This material makes no claim about session count or treatment effectiveness.
