Maintaining and revising agreements

1 | Purpose, fit and boundaries

Purpose of this unit

Review an existing family agreement for fit, reciprocity, and capacity, and revise it when conditions change. The outcome is a decision to continue, change, stop, or seek further support.

Choice and adaptation

Choose this sheet following professional assessment and with consent. The person may skip questions, answer aloud, or choose another tool. This is proposed original material for review; it provides no score, diagnosis, or promise of an outcome.

Boundaries specific to this unit

Do not turn an agreement into a means of control, logging violations, or punishment. A change of wishes is not disloyalty. Do not continue joint work under threat, violence, or coercion; assess a suitable support approach separately.

Reusing existing material

Summarize useful information from FAMILY-02–05. Do not repeat the whole series; review only the relevant agreement and the possibility of changing it.

A fictional example for discussion

Fictional example: Orit and her brother shared visits to a relative. When her work changed, they reviewed the agreement and looked for an alternative without counting who cared more.

> Draft for administrator review. Clinical review and final rights approval are still pending.

Working together with the worksheet

2 | A conversation about one situation

Opening

Choose a situation the person wants to explore. It need not be the hardest situation. Check that the question is understood and the wording fits the person; their account comes before the therapist's interpretation.

1 | Question for discussion

What agreement would I like to reassess?

2 | Question for discussion

Are its purpose and resources still relevant?

3 | Question for discussion

Who carries the burden, and what needs a different division?

4 | Question for discussion

Is it suitable to continue, change, or stop it?

5 | Question for discussion

What feedback method will allow revision without ongoing monitoring?

Closing

Summarize what became clearer and what remains open. Use the existing SES-S01 and SES-S02 for the session framework. There is no need to repeat an assessment or plan already recorded.

Possible difficulties

If the review becomes a ledger of violations, stop counting and return to needs and resources. Inability to refuse requires examining the setting, not merely changing wording.

Adapting for four age groups

3 | Age is a starting point, not an assumption about ability

CH | Children, approximately ages 6 to 11

An adult is responsible for remembering and implementing the agreement; the child is not responsible for inspecting the family. Explore feeling understood and safe, not an obedience score.

Offer one question at a time with little writing. Adult support must not replace the child's own voice.

TE | Adolescents, approximately ages 12 to 17

Review changing needs for independence and privacy. A previous agreement does not prevent a new request; allow feedback that is not public.

Agree in advance what will be shared and with whom, and explain the privacy limits in this setting. Do not promise absolute confidentiality.

AD | Adults

Consider changes in work, health, and caregiving responsibilities. Agreed wording is not enough if the resources to implement it are absent.

OA | Older adults

Respect a preference to change a longstanding agreement. Help with reading or expression does not replace consent; discuss with family while involving the person themselves.

Offer reading support, time, and conversation according to preference. Choose help from another person together with the participant, respecting their privacy.

> Each age version needs its own review. Approval of one version does not automatically approve the others.

Practice, review and next steps

4 | Shared choice and learning from the attempt

Before offering practice sheet P

Review one agreement at a time chosen in advance. Daily monitoring is unnecessary; the session may conclude that the agreement is unsuitable and offer other support.

At the next session

Summarize what to keep and when to seek further help. A new agreement is not required if stopping the trial is the suitable option.

Professional and technical records

Each version has a separate review record covering age suitability, originality, rights, and fictional filling. Reviewer and date fields remain blank until assigned. File checks or a code merge are not clinical approval. Clinical information stays only in the authorized setting, outside the code repository.
