Disagreement and conflict

1 | Purpose, fit and boundaries

Purpose of this unit

Distinguish a disagreement that can be discussed from an unsafe situation, and prepare a limited conversation about one issue. Choose timing, wording, listening and an option to pause or leave.

Choice and adaptation

Choose this sheet following professional assessment and with consent. The person may skip questions, answer aloud, or choose another tool. This is proposed original material for review; it provides no score, diagnosis, or promise of an outcome.

Boundaries specific to this unit

Do not use this sheet to mediate violence, threats or coercion, or automatically assign equal responsibility. Confrontation, apology and reconciliation are not required. Safety and professional support come before conversation.

Reusing existing material

SOC-02 explores interpretations and SOC-03 requests or boundaries. REG-04 and REG-05 address emotional expression and repair; here we plan the conditions for a conversation and the option not to have it.

A fictional example for discussion

Fictional example: Eyal and his neighbor disagree about noise at a certain time. Eyal chooses a brief message with a specific request and decides not to continue if the conversation becomes harmful.

> Draft for administrator review. Clinical review and final rights approval are still pending.

Working together with the worksheet

2 | A conversation about one situation

Opening

Choose a situation the person wants to explore. It need not be the hardest situation. Check that the question is understood and the wording fits the person; their account comes before the therapist's interpretation.

1 | Question for discussion

What is the disagreement about, and what might a conversation achieve?

2 | Question for discussion

What conditions, timing and power differences need consideration?

3 | Question for discussion

How will I describe the issue and my need?

4 | Question for discussion

What am I willing to hear or clarify with the other person?

5 | Question for discussion

What is a signal to stop, and what alternative do I have?

Closing

Summarize what became clearer and what remains open. Use the existing SES-S01 and SES-S02 for the session framework. There is no need to repeat an assessment or plan already recorded.

Possible difficulties

Trying to resolve everything in one conversation may widen the conflict. Focus on a limited issue. If fear or threats emerge, stop planning the conversation and explore suitable support.

Adapting for four age groups

3 | Age is a starting point, not an assumption about ability

CH | Children, approximately ages 6 to 11

Practice a mild disagreement, such as choosing a game, with a safe adult. Do not make a child responsible for managing conflict between adults.

Offer one question at a time with little writing. Adult support must not replace the child's own voice.

TE | Adolescents, approximately ages 12 to 17

Explore ways to leave a conversation and seek support. Do not require confrontation with friends, a teacher or a family member to prove assertiveness.

Agree in advance what will be shared and with whom, and explain the privacy limits in this setting. Do not promise absolute confidentiality.

AD | Adults

Distinguish mutual disagreement from harm or abuse of power. An organizational channel or professional support may be more appropriate than direct conversation.

OA | Older adults

Respect choosing to postpone a conversation or involve a chosen helper. Do not interpret avoiding confrontation as inability or agree on the participant's behalf.

Offer reading support, time, and conversation according to preference. Choose help from another person together with the participant, respecting their privacy.

> Each age version needs its own review. Approval of one version does not automatically approve the others.

Practice, review and next steps

4 | Shared choice and learning from the attempt

Before offering practice sheet P

First practice in the session or choose a mild disagreement with a safe person. Agree on a way to pause and obtain support. Do not assign contact with someone harmful or renewal of a relationship the person chose to end.

At the next session

Explore whether the conditions and boundaries were respected, not only whether agreement was reached. Disagreement may remain; a conversation that is unhelpful or unsafe need not continue.

Professional and technical records

Each version has a separate review record covering age suitability, originality, rights, and fictional filling. Reviewer and date fields remain blank until assigned. File checks or a code merge are not clinical approval. Clinical information stays only in the authorized setting, outside the code repository.
