An evolving therapy formulation

A framework for an individual hypothesis explored with the client and reviewed as more information and experience emerge.

> For therapist use when recording. A suitable summary for discussion will be developed with the client; do not infer a diagnosis from this sheet.

01 The difficulty, context and what matters to the client

What is known, from whom and when? Current circumstances, relevant background, strengths and a chosen goal.

02 A specific situation and the meaning given to it

An actual example and a thought or interpretation in the client's words; what was inferred by the therapist?

03 Feelings, body sensations and responses

What was felt and what was done or not done, including responses from others.

04 Immediate and later effects

What brought relief or protection in the short term, and what was the later effect? A hypothesis, not a conclusion.

05 What supports this understanding, and what might contradict it?

Strengths, helpful conditions, alternative explanations and missing information; do not assume every response is unhelpful.

06 What will we explore together, and how will we update our understanding?

How well it fits the client's perspective, a question to explore, an agreed step and a date for review.
