OCDYC-06 | OCDYC | Child aged 6–7 and a suitable support person

Ages 6–7: help from parents and support people

1 | Purpose, fit and boundaries

Purpose of this unit

Explore the child's experience of support and gather supporter-response information so the therapist can adapt family work without blame.

Choice and adaptation

Choose this sheet following professional assessment and with consent. The person may skip questions, answer aloud, or choose another tool. This is proposed original material for review; it provides no score, diagnosis, or promise of an outcome.

Boundaries specific to this unit

Do not withdraw help, ignore distress, punish or surprise the child. The therapist distinguishes warmth and support from ritual participation in context. Basic needs and protections remain.

Reusing existing material

OCDYC is separate from ages 8 and over. Shortening an adult form does not establish suitability. Earlier OCDYC learning may help, but unit 6 does not prescribe a session number.

A fictional example for discussion

Fictional example: Lia asks her mother to repeat an answer. Her mother describes the conversation and burden; Lia shares what was hard. The therapist explores an adapted response; the sheet does not instruct refusal.

> Draft for administrator review. Clinical review and final rights approval are still pending.

Working together with the worksheet

2 | A conversation about one situation

Opening

The therapist or support person reads one question. The child may use a few words, point or skip. Adults may write the child's words but not answer for them. Professional terms and descriptions of every thought are not required.

1 | Question for discussion

Who helps me when it is hard?

2 | Question for discussion

What help feels good to me?

3 | Question for discussion

What does the adult do that confuses me?

4 | Question for discussion

What do I want to tell the adult helping me?

5 | Question for discussion

What will we ask the therapist to understand with us?

Closing

Summarize what became clearer and what remains open. Use the existing SES-S01 and SES-S02 for the session framework. There is no need to repeat an assessment or plan already recorded.

Possible difficulties

Supporter fatigue or inconsistency calls for support, not blame. Explore adult tension without asking the child to take sides.

Child, support person and therapist — separate roles

3 | Ages 6–7 only; developmental and family adaptation required

The voice of the child aged 6–7

Choose one example without labeling the parent good or bad. Coordinating adults is not the child's responsibility.

The parent or support person's role

Allow space for your own difficulty while responding warmly. Changes in ritual participation require individualized planning, not a blanket instruction from a sheet.

The therapist's role and adapting the setting

Assess family patterns, risks and strengths alongside child needs. Do not assume every help request or support person's presence maintains OCD.

Limits of the material

Mapping against a full OCD manual and professional approval remain pending. This is original support material for review, not an approved ERP manual or its replacement.

> Do not apply this pathway to other age groups without separate review.

Practice, review and next steps

4 | Shared choice and learning from the attempt

Before offering practice sheet P

The P sheet is shared: two questions for the child's voice and three for supporter observations. Use only as agreed with the therapist, without child-alone exposure homework, abrupt response changes or punishment. Daily records and thought counts are unnecessary.

At the next session

Check that the agreed supporter response was clear and feasible. Preserve connection and support, returning to the therapist when changes are needed.

Professional and technical records

Each version has a separate review record covering age suitability, originality, rights, and fictional filling. Reviewer and date fields remain blank until assigned. File checks or a code merge are not clinical approval. Clinical information stays only in the authorized setting, outside the code repository.

Background references

The following links were used for background only. Questions and adaptations were written afresh for the expansion plan; no questionnaire, scale, or protocol was copied. Adult sources do not validate the child versions. This material makes no claim about session count or treatment effectiveness.

Treatment-manual mapping status

Mapping against a full OCD manual and professional approval remain pending. This is original support material for review, not an approved ERP manual or its replacement.
