What is changing and what can support me

1 | Purpose, fit and boundaries

Purpose of this unit

Make room for a change, loss, or transition the person chooses to discuss, and identify possible needs and support without requiring adjustment at a particular pace.

Choice and adaptation

Choose this sheet following professional assessment and with consent. The person may skip questions, answer aloud, or choose another tool. This is proposed original material for review; it provides no score, diagnosis, or promise of an outcome.

Boundaries specific to this unit

There are no mandatory stages of grief, deadline for grief to end, or obligation to find a positive side. Do not ask for difficult event details. Change may involve losing a person, relationship, role, home, or ability; the need for further assessment is a professional decision.

Reusing existing material

Use the session framework and existing mood or support sheets only if appropriate. Do not replace grief with a diagnosis or an assumption of depression.

> Draft for administrator review. Clinical review and final rights approval are still pending.

Working together with the worksheet

2 | A conversation about one situation

Opening

Choose a situation the person wants to explore. It need not be the hardest situation. Check that the question is understood and the wording fits the person; their account comes before the therapist's interpretation.

1 | Question for discussion

What change or loss feels right to bring to the conversation?

2 | Question for discussion

What has changed in routines, roles, or relationships?

3 | Question for discussion

What do I need now, even if my feelings change?

4 | Question for discussion

What would I like to preserve, if anything?

5 | Question for discussion

Who or what can support me in a way that suits me?

Closing

Summarize what became clearer and what remains open. Use the existing SES-S01 and SES-S02 for the session framework. There is no need to repeat an assessment or plan already recorded.

Adapting for four age groups

3 | Age is a starting point, not an assumption about ability

CH | Children, approximately ages 6 to 11

Use clear, developmentally appropriate descriptions and one question at a time. Do not give the child responsibility for comforting an adult.

Offer one question at a time with little writing. Adult support must not replace the child's own voice.

TE | Adolescents, approximately ages 12 to 17

Make room for peers, belonging, and privacy. Do not interpret choosing not to share as a lack of feeling.

Agree in advance what will be shared and with whom, and explain the privacy limits in this setting. Do not promise absolute confidentiality.

AD | Adults

Explore changes in roles and practical demands alongside feelings, without expecting meaning or growth from loss.

OA | Older adults

Make room for personal history, relationships, and independence. Do not assume every change in later life is expected or easier.

Offer reading support, time, and conversation according to preference. Choose help from another person together with the participant, respecting their privacy.

> Each age version needs its own review. Approval of one version does not automatically approve the others.

Practice, review and next steps

4 | Shared choice and learning from the attempt

Before offering practice sheet P

Decide together whether practice between sessions is appropriate at all. Define one opportunity, boundaries, and desired support. Practice may take place only in the session. There is no required daily sequence or requirement to share the sheet with others.

At the next session

Check what supported the person and what added burden. Feelings may change or stay; there is no progress score and no need to finish a story.

Professional and technical records

Each version has a separate review record covering age suitability, originality, rights, and fictional filling. Reviewer and date fields remain blank until assigned. File checks or a code merge are not clinical approval. Clinical information stays only in the authorized setting, outside the code repository.
