Changes in identity and roles

1 | Purpose, fit and boundaries

Purpose of this unit

Explore changes in roles, belonging, and how the person describes themselves, and what they want to preserve or adjust. Allow uncertainty without requiring a new identity or replacement role immediately.

Choice and adaptation

Choose this sheet following professional assessment and with consent. The person may skip questions, answer aloud, or choose another tool. This is proposed original material for review; it provides no score, diagnosis, or promise of an outcome.

Boundaries specific to this unit

Do not give a child adult responsibilities or decide how someone should define themselves. Changes in functioning, partnership, work, or family do not require giving up values or independence. Do not pressure someone to adopt a new role to compensate for loss.

Reusing existing material

CHANGE-01 and 02 help explore the change and needs. Here, map one role or area of belonging; SELF sheets may support self-regard without replacing practical clarification of responsibility.

A fictional example for discussion

Fictional example: After moving to a new setting, Uri is asked to handle every computer issue at home. He chooses to clarify what he can do and when, without giving up study and rest to meet the new role.

> Draft for administrator review. Clinical review and final rights approval are still pending.

Working together with the worksheet

2 | A conversation about one situation

Opening

Choose a situation the person wants to explore. It need not be the hardest situation. Check that the question is understood and the wording fits the person; their account comes before the therapist's interpretation.

1 | Question for discussion

What role has changed, and what does it mean to me?

2 | Question for discussion

What would I like to preserve in my identity and preferences?

3 | Question for discussion

What tasks or expectations have shifted to me because of the change?

4 | Question for discussion

What needs redistribution, training, or support?

5 | Question for discussion

What decision do I want to make myself, and at what pace?

Closing

Summarize what became clearer and what remains open. Use the existing SES-S01 and SES-S02 for the session framework. There is no need to repeat an assessment or plan already recorded.

Possible difficulties

If separating who I am from what I do is difficult, begin with one action and one expectation. There is no need to invent a new positive identity to move the conversation forward.

Adapting for four age groups

3 | Age is a starting point, not an assumption about ability

CH | Children, approximately ages 6 to 11

Distinguish a small, age-appropriate task from responsibility for a household or an adult's feelings. The child may ask for help and remain a child even during a difficult time.

Offer one question at a time with little writing. Adult support must not replace the child's own voice.

TE | Adolescents, approximately ages 12 to 17

Ask about expectations to be strong or replace someone absent. Allow boundaries and renewed belonging without requiring a new label.

Agree in advance what will be shared and with whom, and explain the privacy limits in this setting. Do not promise absolute confidentiality.

AD | Adults

Explore changes in work, caring for others, or relationships without assuming a particular family structure. Legal or financial responsibilities require advice from the appropriate field.

OA | Older adults

Do not assume retirement, dependence, or loss of ability based on age. Involve a companion according to the person's wishes while preserving their voice and preferences.

Offer reading support, time, and conversation according to preference. Choose help from another person together with the participant, respecting their privacy.

> Each age version needs its own review. Approval of one version does not automatically approve the others.

Practice, review and next steps

4 | Shared choice and learning from the attempt

Before offering practice sheet P

Choose a small clarification or request to adjust a role, only in a safe, appropriate setting. The request can be drafted with the therapist without delivering it or committing to change.

At the next session

Check whether responsibilities were shared by agreement and what remains unclear. Recognizing something the person does not want to take on is a valid outcome.

Professional and technical records

Each version has a separate review record covering age suitability, originality, rights, and fictional filling. Reviewer and date fields remain blank until assigned. File checks or a code merge are not clinical approval. Clinical information stays only in the authorized setting, outside the code repository.
