FAMILY-05 | Therapist only - all age groups

Siblings, transitions, and conflicts

1 | Purpose, fit and boundaries

Purpose of this unit

Understand how changes in family composition, availability, or roles affect one's personal place. Choose one need and a possible response without deciding who is right or forcing closeness.

Choice and adaptation

Choose this sheet following professional assessment and with consent. The person may skip questions, answer aloud, or choose another tool. This is proposed original material for review; it provides no score, diagnosis, or promise of an outcome.

Boundaries specific to this unit

Do not place a child between parents, require contact with a relative, or demand forgiveness. Harm, threat, or discrimination are not merely communication difficulties. Assessment of current danger and appropriate support come before joint conversation.

Reusing existing material

CHANGE addresses broader personal change. FAMILY-05 focuses on one's place among family members and agreements affected by change; FAMILY-04 offers a limited problem-solving tool when suitable.

A fictional example for discussion

Fictional example: After a sibling is born, Yoav feels less listened to. He chooses to ask for a little time with a consistent adult, without being required to hide jealousy or care for the baby.

> Draft for administrator review. Clinical review and final rights approval are still pending.

Working together with the worksheet

2 | A conversation about one situation

Opening

Choose a situation the person wants to explore. It need not be the hardest situation. Check that the question is understood and the wording fits the person; their account comes before the therapist's interpretation.

1 | Question for discussion

What has changed in the family relationship or role?

2 | Question for discussion

What old assumptions no longer fit?

3 | Question for discussion

What triggers conflict, and what need lies beneath it?

4 | Question for discussion

What is my responsibility, and what is not?

5 | Question for discussion

What response or support fits the current situation?

Closing

Summarize what became clearer and what remains open. Use the existing SES-S01 and SES-S02 for the session framework. There is no need to repeat an assessment or plan already recorded.

Possible difficulties

When pressure arises to decide who is right, return to the participant's needs and boundaries. If the account suggests harm, separate professional assessment comes before relationship practice.

Adapting for four age groups

3 | Age is a starting point, not an assumption about ability

CH | Children, approximately ages 6 to 11

An adult gives appropriate information without exposing conflicts. Allow jealousy, longing, or anger without demanding happiness about change or equal love for everyone.

Offer one question at a time with little writing. Adult support must not replace the child's own voice.

TE | Adolescents, approximately ages 12 to 17

Explore sibling relationships, blended families, and privacy. The adolescent is not a messenger between adults or responsible for resolving the crisis.

Agree in advance what will be shared and with whom, and explain the privacy limits in this setting. Do not promise absolute confidentiality.

AD | Adults

Adult siblings, blended families, and caring for a relative may be discussed. Do not assume restoring the relationship to its previous state is the desired goal.

OA | Older adults

Ask about the specific change without assuming loss of role because of age. Preserve the person's right to set boundaries even around well-intentioned family help.

Offer reading support, time, and conversation according to preference. Choose help from another person together with the participant, respecting their privacy.

> Each age version needs its own review. Approval of one version does not automatically approve the others.

Practice, review and next steps

4 | Shared choice and learning from the attempt

Before offering practice sheet P

One situation can be described in the session and a request or boundary chosen. Contacting a relative, sharing personal details, or joining a family meeting is not required.

At the next session

Check whether the response supports the person's place and is sustainable. Do not infer from one trial that conflict is resolved or contact should resume.

Professional and technical records

Each version has a separate review record covering age suitability, originality, rights, and fictional filling. Reviewer and date fields remain blank until assigned. File checks or a code merge are not clinical approval. Clinical information stays only in the authorized setting, outside the code repository.
