Noticing an interpretation and a possible everyday pattern

We will plan to record one situation and keep a question for joint exploration. Noticing does not require changing the thought immediately.

01 Planning the practice

Chosen context, recording method, time and agreed scope.

02 Describing the situation

What happened, and what could be seen or heard?

03 The thought or image that arose

In my words; is this a memory or a later guess?

04 Separating facts from interpretation

Which part is information and which is a conclusion? What resembles an earlier example, and what differs?

05 Effect on feelings and responses

How did I feel, what did I do and what followed? What else had an influence?

06 A question to explore later

What is missing from my understanding? If I did not record it, what got in the way and what adjustment might help?
